I've had my eye on this game since shortly before its release, however because the lack of reviews, particularly from paying customers, I hesitated to make the purchase. As soon as I saw it went on sale for -50% I jumped on the opportunity to make the purchase, and I have no regrets. The game certainly has a very lighthearted and cartoonish atmosphere but don't let that fool you, for there's plenty of challenge to be had. There's also a nice amount of level variety as well as gameplay modifiers, like pickups and boosts and so on. The controls take some getting used-to, because the characters hop and timing your jumps is very important, but once you get a feel for it you shouldn't have a problem, infact you can even take advantage of the hopping by timing your jump for when the character is at the apex of the hop so you gain that extra height (Jump height+hop height). I certainly recommend this game to anyone looking for a challenging yet lighthearted platformer, especially at its curant sale price, which has the added bonus of "local multi-player", which I personally haven't had the opportunity to try, The only thing at this point that I might suggest adding to the game, which might already be included and since I'm not that far into the game yet perhaps I just haven't made it that far, would be the option to unlock or purchase better weapons or even just different weapons with different behaviors. Hope this helps atleast a few people whom like myself were on the fence about buying the game...
