Fate of three- to five-year-old children examined at a public clinic in Brasília, Brazil. The present study aimed to analyze the growth of children in the first 6 years of life and to identify the socioeconomic and health factors associated with being short and/or stunted, overweight, and with having vitamin or mineral deficiencies. A total of 1,824 children who attended a public pediatric clinic in Brasília, Brazil, were included in the study; of these, 2,246 records were analyzed. Height and weight were measured and the nutritional status assessed through anthropometry, according to the World Health Organization (WHO) criteria. An analysis of the socioeconomic and health variables was conducted in accordance with WHO standards. Mean values of height for age (0-1.9 years) were 86.7 cm and 88.4 cm, respectively, and the average weight for height were 13.3 kg and 14.0 kg, respectively. This study showed that 23.9% of children were short,

13.3% had stunting, 15.3% were overweight, and 57.9% had vitamin or mineral deficiencies, mainly for iron and vitamin D deficiency.

Children from families with at least 5 people were more likely to be stunted ($p = 0.001$) and overweight ($p = 0.007$). In addition, the mean height for age (0-1.9 years) was lower (p List of presidents of the United States National Security Council The National Security Council (NSC) is an advisory committee of the President of the United States, charged with coordinating the national security policies and activities of the federal government.
